Department of Genetics
Richard Wilson Bursary

The Department of Genetics is delighted to announce a new Bursary to encourage research exchange in genetics between Cambridge University and Glasgow University. Funds are available due to the generosity of the late Dr Richard Wilson, who spent 40 years conveying his enthusiasm of genetics and evolutionary biology to students and research colleagues alike.

The Richard Wilson Bursary enables us to fund student exchange between Glasgow and Cambridge. This opportunity will allow a student (of any stage) from either Glasgow University or Cambridge University to study at the opposite University.

Glasgow students coming to Cambridge for periods of 8-10 weeks will receive £250 per week plus a small consumables budget for the host lab.

Applications should include:
   a) a curriculum vitae, with the name of a referee
   b) a brief description of the work proposed (~200 words)
   c) a letter of support from the head of the host laboratory

Cambridge University students wishing to spend a summer in a lab at the University of Glasgow should contact hodsec@gen.cam.ac.uk for further details.

Completed applications for all summer awards should be returned to the Secretary to the Head of Department at: hodsec@gen.cam.ac.uk

The deadline for applications is midday on Tuesday 07 May 2019, and successful applicants will be informed in early June.
